The chair may delegate the conduct of the Congress to the Director General or any appropriate person upon consultation with the Council and intervene, when they consider to be appropriate.
- 4.2 No person is allowed to speak without being given the floor by the chair of the Congress.
- 4.3 The maker of a proposal shall have the right to speak first and can withdraw or amend their proposal before the vote on the proposal is taken. Other Members can raise questions to the proposal-maker which shall be answered immediately. Statements beyond a question will be deferred to the debate on the proposal and will count toward the maximum number of statements per Member. The chair will first ask for questions on a proposal and then open the debate.

- 4.4 When debating a proposal, a Member who takes the floor may table either a proposed amendment or a counter proposal to the original proposal. If the maker of the original proposal agrees to the proposed amendment or counter proposal, that amendment or counter proposal shall be voted on. The version receiving more votes will be submitted to a further vote for adoption.
- 4.5 During the debate, procedural motions (e.g. requesting the end of debate, the adjournment of the meeting or a secret vote) may be submitted at any time. The Congress will proceed according to the result of that vote.
- 4.6 Motions for reconsideration of a proposal are not allowed.
- 4.7 The chair may order the Congress to divide into Branch sessions, have the debate continued there under the chair of the respective Vice President and then resume the Congress for the debate and decision-making on the proposal based on a summary given by the Vice Presidents. The chair may order that the Branch sessions shall take place in parallel at the same time but separately or subsequent to each other and, in that case, which Branch session will proceed first.
- 4.8 Delegates disturbing the conduct of the Congress may be called to order by the chair or in case of repetition expelled from the Congress for the day or the remainder of the Congress. If this delegate is the voting delegate, the respective Member may choose to assign voting to another of its delegates and must inform the President or the chair, if applicable.

- 5.1 The right to vote may be exercised only by the delegate announced to the ISU Office as voting delegate prior to the date of the Congress with the exception of paragraph 4.8 above.

The result of all ballots shall be published on the display panel. In the case of open ballots, the display shall contain a list of all Members present at the vote indicating for each Member whether it has voted yes, no or has abstained.

- 5.4 In case of electronic voting, each voting delegate receives one voting machine. A Member representing both Branches will receive two voting machines.
- 5.5 Online voting in online or hybrid Congresses must be organised securely and respecting the secrecy of vote, if so requested, to the same extent as electronic voting in an in-person Congress.

6 Special Rules for Elections

- 6.2 The elections take place in the order of the agenda.
- 6.3 When the Congress reaches the first agenda point related to elections, the chair of the Congress temporarily turns over the running of the meeting to the chairperson of the Elections Committee. The chairperson of the Elections Committee explains the procedure for the elections set out in the Constitution; reports the results of the eligibility checks conducted by the Elections Committee and confirms the eligibility of the candidates on the ballots.
- 6.4 The chairperson of the Elections Committee gives each candidate for the positions of President and the two Vice Presidents, the possibility for an oral presentation immediately before the respective elections. The candidates' presentations shall be limited to ten (10) minutes for President and five (5) minutes for Vice President.
- 6.5 The ISU Office provides physical or electronic ballots containing the names of all candidates for each position or Body in alphabetic order.
